* These Advocates either do not practice, or only on particular occasions.

† All the Members, excepting two or three, possess real estates of the value of £1000 and upwards. They have no pay. The average disbursements, occasioned by attending during one Parliament, for members residing at a distance, is from £100 to £200. It will be observed, that of the fifty members thirty-three are natives of, or reside in the districts of Quebec and Three Rivers, and Gaspé, containing only about a third of the population. Frequent attempts have been made, on the part of the Administration, to excite in the House local jealousies; but they have always failed both with the members and the Country.
